

“WHY LEARNING A FOREIGN LANGUAGE IS USEFUL, FUN, IMPORTANT AND CHALLENGING?”

To start with, the most important function of human language is communication. People developed language many years ago. Unfortunately, different nations used different languages and couldn't understand each other. This is why people realized how important and useful it is to learn a foreign language. Nowadays many people do this.

In the first place, understanding other languages is important in medicine, science, trade, politics and traveling. People should be able to communicate with each other. Can you imagine a situation when you go abroad for a holiday, you stay in a luxury hotel and you can't communicate with a receptionist because that person can speak only one language that you can't understand? It would be a problem. I think this is why learning foreign languages is useful and important.

Another thing is, that learning other languages can be fun. During many lessons students read interesting articles, listen to great dialogues, or do exciting projects. It can be a good entertainment.

Finally, learning foreign languages is challenging. For some people a challenge is to get on a top of a mountain or to swim a long distance. For others learning another language can be a challenge. You learn and train for a very long time and after many years you see that you can communicate with people from other countries. As in sport – with stubbornness and hard work you can achieve success, be really happy and proud.

In conclusion, I think that for many people learning another language is interesting, they like it and it can be an important part of their life.
