

VIRUS FOUND IN TARNOBRZEG APARTMENT

Two days ago, on the 12th of October, in a house on Warszawska street the police discovered a phial with a strange liquid. According to the specialist who have already tested it, the substance may be a type of dangerous virus known as ADHD-12.

On Thursday, at about 8 p.m. the police station received a strange phone call from an anonymous informer. As they were told about the dangerous chemicals kept by a Władysław G., a former doctor, they immediately decided to pay a visit to him. But the only person they found in the house on Warszawska street was his wife, Mrs Stanisława G. Guided by the informer's indications, they opened the cellar. The sight was incredible – bottles, slops, piles of boxes and chemical devices. “It looked like the guy had a makeshift laboratory in his apartment”, said one of the policemen. The suspected man's wife was disorientated and confused by the situation. She was trying to explain that her husband used to work in a hospital and he had been doing some research. The policemen were interested about the huge green stain on the cellar's ceiling. The woman told them that she wouldn't be surprised if it had been Władysław himself. As she said, he really enjoyed making experiments and once he nearly blew up their house.

But the police didn't believe this strange explanations, especially that earlier she had confessed about Władysław's plans to go abroad. She said that her husband had ‘disappeared’ and she hadn't seen him for few days... Having collected the toxins, the police left the house of Mrs Stanisława, who either knew everything about her husband or she didn't know anything.

“Everything is under our control”, the police officer, Mr Śmiech told us, “Arresting Mr Władysław G. is only a matter of time. Anyway, it was good that we reacted just in time”. And what is the people's opinion about this situation? They were shocked, but they said that in our times everything can happen. The virus could have been spread, for example by the water-supply system and it could have infected many inhabitants. Zbigniew Rękas, the head of the city government warns people not to disregard strange things that could be a threat to the city. “Please, notify the police or appropriate service immediately of such situation”, he asks.

And what about the anonymous informer? Unofficially, the police has already found this men as he will be useful during the examination. But the truth is that if he hadn't phoned the police, there might have been a dangerous epidemic in our town. So, let's have a better look at our neighbours, because we never know what they can hide in their cellars...